Preface

Infrastructure and real estate continue to be two very critical sectors for the Indian economy.

A well-developed infrastructural set-up propels the overall development of a country. It also facilitates a steady inflow of private and foreign investments, and thereby, augments the capital base available for the growth of key sectors in an economy as well as its sustained growth. The infrastructure sector, which includes segments such as energy, transport, water and sanitation, communication, and social and commercial infrastructure, is the focus area for key policymakers to formulate and implement robust regulations, and for banks, corporates and various sovereign wealth and pension funds to undertake long-term investments. This is expected to ensure the time-bound creation of world-class infrastructure in the country. The Union Budget 2022 has once again brought the infrastructure sector into the spotlight because of higher capex budget allocation and also due to data centres and energy storage systems being granted the infrastructure status.

A robust real estate sector, comprising of subsegments such as housing, retail, hospitality and commercial projects, is fundamental to the growth of an economy. The Indian real estate sector has welcomed various alternative asset classes such as senior housing, data centres, life science space and affordable housing projects which are likely to propel it in future. Currently, India's real estate sector is the second-largest employer in the country after agriculture and is slated to grow at a steady pace over the next decade. It has witnessed a paradigm shift from traditional finance to an era of structured finance, private equity and public offering, with a few players even exploring fractional ownership models aided by blockchain.

It would not come as a surprise that both these sectors need a substantial amount of continuous long-term capital for further growth. In view of the importance of these two sectors in the country and the paucity of public funds available to stimulate their growth, it is imperative that additional channels of financing are put in place.

Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) and Infrastructure Investment Trusts (InvITs) are investment vehicles that have become instrumental in attracting investment from retail and institutional investors in the infrastructure and real estate sectors, and supplement the financing efforts by formal banking institutions. Regulations governing REITs and InvITs are quite robust, and the regulator has been proactive in making necessary amendments to align them with stakeholders' expectations and attract investors, without impacting the strong investor protection intent inherent in the regulations.

Today, there are overall 19 InvITs along with three REITs in the market. The last REIT grabbed the attention of many and was subscribed 7.94 times at a 2.43% premium to its offer price.<sup>1</sup> The introduction of REIT and InvIT regulations in the International Financial Services Centre – GIFT augurs well for these vehicles. These regulations also provide for an expansion in the scope of investment not just within the Indian jurisdiction but also in foreign jurisdictions, akin to the S-REITs.

Given this backdrop, it is useful to deviate from traditional thinking and explore the following:

- Going beyond the private sector sponsors: The National Highway Authority of India has already announced the launch of an InvIT, paving the way for other Government-owned assets looking at divestment.
- Captive real estate and infrastructure assets industry sponsors: Corporates with operating self-use infrastructure and commercial assets are looking for an alternative financing and value unlocking model.
- Non-traditional asset classes: Given the growth potential and Government focus, corporates are exploring asset classes such as data centres, warehouses and assets in the renewable space.

This report aims to provide an overview of the Indian REIT and InvIT market, and how various stakeholders can benefit by investing in these trusts. It also elaborates on regulations governing the structure of these instruments in India and compares REIT markets across major countries in the world.

We hope that this report is a useful reference point for our readers on India's REIT and InvIT regulations. As always, we welcome your comments and feedback on the report.

<sup>1</sup> As per Economic Times article dated 16 February 2021 retrieved from <https://economictimes.indiatimes.com/markets/ipo/fpos/brookfield-india-reit-shares-list-with-over-2-premium/articleshow/80971411.cms>

India's listed real assets sector has efficiently weathered the economic uncertainty brought upon by the pandemic. Its three listed REITs returned close to 8% in 2021<sup>2</sup>, with valuations staging a recovery from their troughs that look set to sustain growth through 2022. InvITs fared even better, delivering over 30%<sup>2</sup> back to investors in the same period. The momentum gained could well position their stocks to be among Asia Pacific's top infrastructure listings in 2022.

The resilience of both asset classes speaks volumes of the fundamentals underlying in India's real asset sector. The country's REITs are backed by institutional quality developments that cater to an international tenant base, concentrated in the technology sector. Its youthful demographics, burgeoning middle class and a massive domestic market remains compelling. By 2030, its urban dwellers are expected to swell by a quarter to over 600 million – and that is just 40% of its population.<sup>3</sup>

To cater to urbanisation demands, an estimated 600–800 million square metre of urban space is required to be built every year up to 2030. What about the critical infrastructure needed to serve this build out of its urban cores? The Government's National Infrastructure Pipeline estimates funding requirements of over USD 1.4 trillion by 2025.<sup>4</sup>

India's REITs and InvITs remain pivotal to the country's urbanisation drive as they fulfil a crucial role in bridging the financing gap. By leveraging their ability to recycle capital, both vehicles essentially fulfil the same objective – to catalyse development through repeated rounds of investment by tapping into a variety of private capital sources, both domestic and international, as well as mobilising retail savings towards the development of critical projects.

The encouraging commercial REIT trend in India could undoubtedly pave the way for the expansion into other property segments. With an estimated asset base of USD 1.3 trillion<sup>5</sup> by the end of the decade, the development of India's REITs remains primed for an extended growth cycle. There also remains ample headroom for InvITs to grow, given the massive investments in infrastructure that the country requires.

The current geopolitical climate and inflationary pressures present an appropriate time for both REITs and InvITs to develop further, as allocations to diversify into defensive and alternative assets will gather pace. And that's not all. Securitised and listed vehicles are well placed to capture ESG opportunities. The development of the India's listed real asset base represents a tremendous opportunity to engineer a green and sustainable urban expansion for the country.

Still, while India's prospects are underpinned by its long-term structural trends, the evolution in the regulatory environment remains critical. In this case, Indian regulators have been catalytic, enacting incisive policies that continue to push the boundaries on the sector's governance and relevance. As the framework in India matures with the necessary policies for both asset classes to flourish, the expansion of the country's listed real asset sector will be a massive investment opportunity.

India will continue to be the world's fastest growing major economy with an annual GDP growth rate of 7% in the next five years, surpassing China.<sup>6</sup> With its urban centres driving two-thirds of the output, its cities could rival the current size of middle-income economies by the end of the decade. By that time, six of the world's 30 largest cities will be in India.<sup>7</sup>

The fundamentals and the right structures are in place for the development of a vibrant REIT sector in India, as are the long-term prospects of InvITs. As the premiere advocate for the real assets industry in the region, APREA is proud to present the seventh edition of this publication with PwC and move the discussion forward on the continued advancement of the real assets sector in India. We look forward to an exceptional decade and a new growth era for the country – powered by REITs and InvITs.

Introduction

Since the turn of the century, infrastructure has been considered the sunshine sector in India and has played a pivotal role in helping the country emerge as one of the fastest growing economies in the world. Moreover, the Public Private Partnership (PPP) model in the sector has been a stimulus for significant domestic and foreign investment, and propel the economy.

Since 2014, the country has been witnessing a revival on account of several reform measures undertaken by the Indian Government. The liberalisation of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) rules for the real estate sector, opening up of the domestic fund industry to foreign investment, and the enactment of the Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act, 2016, had infused vigour and vitality into this industry. However, with the sector weathering the storm of the pandemic, fresh efforts would need to be taken to give it the required boost.

India's real estate sector is expected to reach a market size of USD 1 trillion by 2030 from the current levels of USD 200 billion.<sup>8</sup> Here too, with the economy likely to be recovering from the current pandemic, the possibility of this expectation becoming a reality, though certain, may be somewhat delayed. The asset mix in investors' portfolios will now be different due to the paradigm shift from traditional asset classes such as offices and residential spaces to data centres and logistics, which are likely to become the favoured asset classes. Furthermore, this is the year when the Government of India aims to fulfil its target of providing housing to all. This made the industry participants vie for the affordable housing segment. The housing supply increased by 228% in Q2 FY22<sup>9</sup> and the additional budget allocation for construction makes affordable housing an attractive investment segment for the industry.

The real estate sector is closely related to the infrastructure sector, which is fundamental for the former's growth. And in view of the capital-intensive nature of this sector and the limited options available to real estate and infra developers to raise funds, REITs and InvITs continue to offer a way forward.

In general terms, REITs and InvITs are investment vehicles that own and operate real estate and infrastructure related assets, and allow individual investors to earn an income without actually buying any assets. Typically, the income-producing real estate assets owned by a REIT include office buildings, shopping malls, apartments, warehouses and mortgaged property. Whereas the typical infrastructure assets owned by an InvIT are roads, renewables, tower infrastructure, etc.

Over the years, REITs have constructively changed the way in which the real estate market operates, and benefitted investors as well as real estate developers.

The Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) introduced its draft REIT regulations in 2007. Over the years, the regulator has done a commendable job of structuring these regulations by closely partnering with important stakeholders, government bodies, investors and real estate developers in the country, bringing them in sync with globally recognised norms. After considerable modifications, the Real Estate Investment Trusts Regulations, 2014 (REIT Regulations), were enacted in India on 26 September 2014. The listing of Embassy Office Parks in April 2019 has broken the ice in the Indian REIT industry. This was followed by the listing of the Mindspace REIT in August 2020 and Brookfield REIT in early 2021 with the market eagerly waiting to see how others materialise.

The encouraging response and positive listing of REITs have paved the way for many real estate enterprises with substantially large portfolios of rent-yielding properties (not restricted to commercial but including warehousing and retail) to set up their own Indian REITs. This has also boosted the confidence of investors in REITs. We have also seen various InvITs being set up with portfolios comprising power transmission infrastructure (viz. fibre and tower), road assets and renewables.

With enhanced emphasis on e-commerce and data localisation, there has been an increase in the demand for warehousing and data centres. We are likely to see a data centre and/or warehousing InvIT in near future, especially with data centres being granted infrastructure status.

<sup>9</sup> As per IBEF Report retrieved from <https://www.ibef.org/industry/indian-real-estate-industry-analysis-presentation>

Since the formulation of the REIT regulations and the time these were notified in 2014, SEBI seems to have adopted an all-inclusive approach in developing these robust regulations to align them not only in sync with international standards but also on the basis of the business requirements of industry players. Continuous policy reforms in the real estate sector have taken India to the 34th position in the Global Real Estate Transparency Index (GRETl) 2020.<sup>10</sup> This ranking, coupled with the successful listing of REITs, is expected to contribute to the growing confidence of global funds and encourage them to invest in India.

It is interesting to note that the regulatory regime governing these investment vehicles in India is similar to those in several developed and developing countries, especially with respect to distribution policies, capital requirements, etc.

Although several foreign REITs have been investing in Indian assets over the last few years, an encouraged response and the listing of the recent REITs in India paves the way for many real estate enterprises with a substantially large portfolio of rent-yielding properties to set up their own Indian REIT. The Government of India permitted REITs/InvITs incorporated in permissible jurisdictions to be listed on stock exchanges operating in the International Financial Services Centre (IFSC) in India.

The International Financial Services Centre Authority (IFSCA) has prescribed a regulatory framework for listing of REITs on stock exchanges in the IFSC which is aligned with the SEBI regulations.

A detailed analysis of regulations relating to REITs and InvITs will help those interested in taking advantage of these investment vehicles.

REITs and InvITs: Key advantages

REITs and InvITs: Key advantages

Over the last decade, REITs and InvITs have grown into a mature market, providing easy access to high-quality assets and enabling a stable return on investments. The number of countries offering REITs as an investment vehicle has increased to 43. Countries including Australia, Canada, France, Spain, Hong Kong and Germany are purported to have established REIT markets. The recent popularity of these investment channels is driven by the numerous benefits they offer multiple stakeholders.

Stakeholders and parameters		Benefits
Developers	Liquidity	REITs and InvITs facilitate the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• An increase in entry and exit opportunities for developers, asset owners and financial investors, enabling them to monetise their assets (real estate or projects)</li> <li>• Availability of last-mile funding for stalled projects</li> </ul>
	Business	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Transformation of business from an asset-heavy to asset-light model</li> <li>• A focus on core competencies, and segregation of operations and infrastructure</li> <li>• Capital-raising avenues for developers of small companies</li> </ul>
Investors	Retail investors	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Facilitation of easy entry and exit in the real estate sector</li> <li>• Enabling small retail investors to participate in asset classes that are normally unaffordable for them</li> <li>• Additional income generating and stable investment avenues offered for retirement planning</li> <li>• Enablement of diversification of investment holdings to help financial and strategic investors manage risk</li> <li>• Strengthening of risk management by allowing holdings of multiple assets to reduce their concentrated asset risk</li> <li>• Fragmentation of real estate asset holdings with multiple owners avoided, leading to focused high-quality asset maintenance</li> <li>• Discouragement of forced strata sale of assets at a discounted valuation</li> </ul>
	Broad-based institutional investors	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Facilitation of easy entries and exits for existing financial investors</li> <li>• Alternative financing offered</li> <li>• Low-risk investments offered to attract long-term investors such as insurance and pension funds</li> </ul>

Stakeholders and parameters		Benefits
Macroeconomy	Capital markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Development of primary and secondary capital markets by the establishment of a perpetual structure for raising capital at a reduced cost from long-term patient investors</li> <li>• Replacement of bank debt with long-term equity capital</li> <li>• A reduction in the financing burden on banks by the exposure to real estate/infrastructure being decreased, leading to the creation of additional capital for other sectors</li> </ul>
	Corporate governance	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Improvement in transparency, disclosure standards and professionalism in the sector</li> <li>• Informed decision-making enabled for investors</li> </ul>
	Government	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Augmentation of the Government's revenues</li> <li>• Increased finance provided for critical sectors, including Transportation and Energy, and a boost being given to the Government's vision for 100 smart cities</li> </ul>
	Societal benefits	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• REITs and InvITs augment direct and indirect employment opportunities through the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Fund management services</li> <li>• Project management and operation</li> <li>• Property management and operation</li> <li>• Valuation services</li> <li>• Trusteeship services</li> <li>• Assurance and other professional services</li> </ul> </li> </ul>

Various characteristics of the Indian economy are conducive to the growth of the markets mentioned above in the country, with an expectation to achieve 8–8.5% GDP growth between 2023–2030. This, coupled with other factors such as availability of land, has led to a significant rise in the interest taken by private equity companies and foreign investors in the Indian real estate sector.

In order to give an impetus to broad-based institutional investors, for sovereign wealth funds and pension funds that satisfy requisite conditions, tax laws have introduced a specific exemption for interest, dividends and long-term capital gains arising on long-term investments, inter alia, in the units of InvITs.

Cross-country REIT markets

Cross-country REIT markets

Since the inception of REITs in the US in the 1960s, several countries around the world, developed as well as emerging markets, have introduced such instruments in their jurisdictions. The table below highlights similarities and differences in five countries — the US, Japan, the UK, Singapore and Malaysia. While there are many similarities in the basic structure of this investment vehicle—for instance, with respect to the distribution policy on returns—growth varies across these countries. The US and Australia, which were the first to introduce REITs, have witnessed a high growth in their REIT markets, possibly due to the tax reforms they have introduced. Market capitalisation in some countries, including Malaysia, where the REIT market (Property Trust Funds in 1989) started late, is relatively untapped, compared to other countries such as Singapore. While the market is nascent and still evolving in India, key guidelines, for instance, with respect to distribution of income, are the same as in other jurisdictions.

Transfer pricing

Transfer pricing

SEBI's regulations on the REIT and InvIT mandate that all related party transactions (RPTs) should be at arm's length and in the best interest of the unit holders, consistent with the strategy and investment objectives of an REIT/InvIT. As per the regulations, the definition 'related party' is very wide as it includes the definition under the Companies Act, 2013, or under the applicable accounting standard. Furthermore, significant compliance and disclosure requirements have been prescribed for transactions entered with related parties under REIT and InvIT Regulations.

Under SEBI's regulations for REITs, specific guidance for valuation has been provided for RPTs of purchase or sale of properties. However, no guidance is available for other transactions, including leasing, remuneration to the manager and pricing of debt or securities. In the case of InvITs, no guidance is provided for any category of transactions. In this regard, reliance can be placed on the guidance for arm's length pricing from other regulations such as the Indian Income-tax Act, 1961, Indian Income-tax Rules, 1962, and the OECD<sup>19</sup> transfer pricing guidelines for multinational enterprises and tax administrations.

The disclosure and compliance requirements will require the manager to ensure that all the RPTs are at arm's length and that disclosure-related requirements have been complied with. In the event of a conflict of interest, confirmation from a practicing chartered accountant will be required stating that the RPTs are at an arm's-length basis.

Ind AS for REITs and
InvITs

Ind AS for REITs and InvITs

---

The Indian Accounting Standards (Ind AS) are relatively more prescriptive and elaborate in many areas, compared to generally accepted accounting principles in India (previous Indian GAAP) that were earlier followed by companies. At the fundamental level, Ind AS focus on substance rather than the legal aspect, and the risks and rewards of underlying transactions. The standards break away from legal structure-based accounting to a more substance-driven process. Accounting under Ind AS reflects the underlying business rationale and true economics of transactions. The extent of their impact varies across industries. An industry that has been affected significantly is the India's real estate and construction industry.

We have summarised the key likely impact on financial reporting of real estate and construction entities, which could necessitate significant changes to be made under Ind AS.

Consolidation

A REIT or InvIT can invest either directly or indirectly through SPVs, i.e., a company or LLP, in real estate assets. Ind AS are likely to change how sponsors/unitholders (non-sponsors) and asset managers assess REITs or InvITs for consolidation as well as consolidation of such SPVs by a REIT or InvIT.

Principles relating to consolidated financial statements under Ind AS are set out in Ind AS 110, 'Consolidated Financial Statements'. Ind AS 110 has a single definition of control and sets out requirements for an entity on its preparation of consolidated financial statements. It defines the principles of control, explains how an entity should apply the principles of control and comply with accounting requirements to prepare consolidated financial statements.

Under Ind AS, control exists and consolidation is only required if an investor exerts power over an investee, is exposed to variable returns from its involvement with the investee and uses its power over the investee to affect its returns.

Ind AS 110 provides a limited scope of exception from consolidation for parents that are 'investment entities'. If an entity is an investment entity under Ind AS 110, it is prohibited from consolidating its subsidiaries with one exception, i.e., to consolidate a subsidiary that is not itself an investment entity and that provides services for the entity's investment-related activities. An entity qualifies as an investment entity only when all the following conditions are met:

- It obtains funds from one or more investors for the purpose of providing those investor (or investors) with investment management services.
- It commits to its investor(s) that its business purpose is to invest funds solely for returns from capital appreciation, investment income or both.
- It measures and evaluates the performance of substantially all of its investments based on their fair value.

Investment-related activities include investment management services, investment advisory services and administrative support. These services may constitute a substantial part of a business and may be provided to third parties as well. This will not disqualify an entity from being an investment entity.

Under Ind AS 110, if an entity qualifies as an investment entity, it is required to account for its subsidiaries at their fair value through profit or loss (except as mentioned above), in accordance with Ind AS 109 (Financial Instruments). If an investment entity only has subsidiaries that are measured at fair value through profit or loss, it presents separate financial statements as its only financial statements, i.e., consolidated financial statements, are not prepared.

Guidance under Ind AS may result in the consolidation of entities that may not have been previously consolidated under previous Indian GAAP and may also result in the deconsolidation of certain entities. Depending on the facts relating to and the circumstances of specific entities, certain special purpose structures or vehicles may no longer remain outside a consolidated group. This could significantly affect the reported net worth and performance of certain groups.

In other words, sponsors along with their asset management entities (not qualifying as investment entities), will need to evaluate whether they control a REIT or InvIT, and if so, whether this could trigger consolidation, either at the sponsor or the asset management entity level. Furthermore, it also needs to be evaluated whether the REIT or InvIT qualifies as an 'investment entity' under Ind AS in order to avail the benefit of not consolidating its investments in underlying SPVs through which they hold their real estate or infrastructure assets. It is important to note that the sponsors and/or asset management entities will need to consolidate the SPVs through which they hold real estate or infrastructure assets if the sponsor/asset management entity controls the REIT or InvIT under Ind AS, unless the said sponsor and/or asset management entity itself meets the definition of an investment entity.

Joint arrangements

A joint arrangement necessitates a contract where at least two parties agree to share control of activities undertaken under the arrangement. Unanimous consent on decisions taken on relevant activities between the parties sharing control is a requirement to comply with the definition of joint control.

Joint arrangements can be joint operations or joint ventures (JV). The classification is based on principle and depends on the parties' exposure in relation to the arrangement. When this only extends to the net assets of the arrangement, it is generally classified as a JV.

In contrast, joint operators have rights to assets and obligations for liabilities relating to a joint arrangement. Joint operations are often not structured through separate vehicles. When a joint arrangement is separated from the parties and is included in a separate vehicle, it can either be a joint operation or a JV. In such cases, further analysis is required on the legal form of the separate vehicle, the terms and conditions included in the contractual agreement, and sometimes, other facts and circumstances as well. This is because, in practice, the latter two can override the principles derived from the legal form of the separate vehicle.

Joint operators account for their rights to assets and obligations for liabilities and JVs for their interest by using the equity method of accounting.

Previously, Indian GAAP required JVs to be consolidated proportionately, whereas under Ind AS 111 'Joint Arrangements', with certain exceptions, JVs are accounted for under the Equity Method of accounting as described in Ind AS 28 Investments in Associates and Joint Ventures.

Many companies are affected by this change since they have moved from proportionate consolidation to the Equity Method of accounting. This effectively changes the gross total of their reported assets and liabilities as well as other performance-related measures, although it may not change reported net assets and net results.

The process of structuring joint arrangement, for example, to develop and construct property, can be complicated. Consequently, it is important for sponsors, REITs and InvITs to understand not only the legal structure, but also the contractual terms of their arrangements, and where relevant other facts and circumstances in order to assess the likely impact.

Leases

REITs or InvITs' own income-producing real estate assets such as office buildings, shopping malls, apartments, warehouses and mortgages and mainly earn revenue by leasing space or selling property holdings.

Ind AS 116, 'Leases' has fundamentally changed accounting for lease transactions, particularly for lessees, and is likely to lead to significant business-related implications. Almost all leases will be recognised on the balance sheet, with a right-of-use asset and financial liability. Amortisation of the right of use asset and accretion of interest on the financial liability is likely to result in recognition of higher expenses in profit or loss during the earlier life of a lease.

When it comes to leasing transactions, the majority of entities in the real estate industry will be the lessors. While the new standard leaves lessor accounting unchanged, compared to previous lease standard Ind AS 17, it will have a significant impact on the industry's customer base, its tenants (lessees). For example, the retail industry is likely to be one of the most affected by the new standard, in view of the significant use of rented premises for their stores. Historically, tenants have accounted for such leases as operating leases, recognising rental payments as an operating expense on a straight-line basis and with no significant impact on the balance sheet. The new leasing standard will not only have an impact on tenants' balance sheets but also on their operating costs, with the expense being split between depreciation and finance costs.

From a lessor's perspective, it is important to be aware of this impact for tenants as they may influence market behaviour towards a preference for shorter term or more flexible leases with various types of contingent payment terms, to minimise the amount recognised as lease liabilities.

Key features of Ind AS 116, 'Leases':

- The lessee has to recognise a right-of-use asset and a lease liability for almost all lease contracts with exemptions for short-term leases and leases of low-value assets.
- The lessee has to present the interest expense (on lease liability) and the depreciation charge (for right-of-use asset) separately.
- Enhanced disclosure requirements

Furthermore, the definition of a lease, compared to the previous lease standard, might result in some contracts being treated differently. Ind AS 116 includes detailed guidance to help companies assess whether a contract contains a lease or a service, or both.

Revenue recognition

Ind AS 115, 'Revenue from contracts with customers', provides a single, comprehensive revenue- recognition model for all contracts with customers. The core principle of Ind AS 115 is that an entity will need to recognise revenue to depict the transfer of promised goods or services to customers at an amount that the entity expects to be entitled to in exchange for such goods or services.

Real estate companies will need to consider:

- Whether revenue should be recognised over time or at a point in time
- The extent to which distinct goods or services are supplied, which should be accounted for separately
- Whether costs relating to obtaining a contract must be capitalised
- Whether revenue must be adjusted for the effect of the time value of money
- How to account for contract modifications
- The impact of new guidance where pricing mechanisms include variable amounts

The standard requires significantly more disclosures relating to revenue and entities will need to ensure that appropriate processes are in place to gather the information. The standard may also have an impact on an entity's budgeting and reporting process, IT systems, internal control systems, employee Key Performance Indicators (KPIs) and bonuses. It may also have tax implications under many circumstances.

Financial instruments

The standards on financial instruments have a wide-ranging impact on companies and provide extensive guidance on identification, classification, recognition and measurement of financial instruments. They also provide guidance on derecognition of financial instruments and hedge accounting, and include extensive disclosure requirements.

Classification, recognition and measurement principles, and disclosure requirements for financial instruments are addressed in the following three standards:

- Ind AS 107 (Financial Instruments: Disclosures), which includes disclosure-related requirements
- Ind AS 32 (Financial Instruments: Presentation), which distinguishes debt from equity and provides guidance on netting of financial instruments
- Ind AS 109 (Financial Instruments), which includes classification, recognition, measurement, hedge accounting and impairment-related requirements

The objective of these three standards is to establish the requirements for all aspects of accounting for financial instruments.

Investment in debt instruments

Ind AS 109 includes three categories for classifying investments in debt instruments—amortised cost, fair value through other comprehensive income (FVOCI) and fair value through profit or loss (FVPL). This classification is driven by an entity's business model for managing financial assets and the characteristics of an instrument's contractual cash flows.

Investment in equity instruments

Investments in equity instruments are to be measured at their fair value on a recurring basis. This is a big change from the practice followed under the previous Indian GAAP. Equity instruments are defined as those that comply with the definition of 'equity' from the perspective of the issuer, as defined in Ind AS 32. Equity instruments held for trading will be classified as FVPL. For all other equities, the management will be able to irrevocably decide on initial recognition on an instrument-by-instrument basis, to present the changes in fair value in other comprehensive income (OCI) rather than in profit or loss. If this is done, all changes in fair value, excluding dividends that are a return on investment, will be included in OCI. There will neither be any recycling of amounts from OCI to profit or loss (e.g., on sale of an equity investment) nor any impairment-related requirements. However, an entity may transfer its cumulative gain or loss within its equity.

Debt/equity/compound financial instruments

Under Ind AS, classification of financial instruments as either debt or equity is based on the substance of the contractual arrangement underlying the instrument rather than its legal form. For example, a redeemable preference share, which is economically similar to a bond or debenture, will be accounted for as a liability rather than an equity by the issuer, even though it is legally the issuer's share capital.

Classification of other instruments may not be as straightforward. An analysis of the terms of each instrument (in light of detailed classification-related requirements) is necessary, particularly since some financial instruments have both liability and equity features (known as compound financial instruments under Ind AS).

Treatment of interest, dividends, losses and gains in an income statement follows classification of the related instrument. If a preference share is classified as a liability, its coupon (preference dividend) is shown as the interest cost. However, the discretionary coupon on an instrument, which is treated as equity, is shown as distribution within equity.

The impact can be significant for REITs, InvITs or their underlying SPVs that use such compound financial instruments in financing their operations, and affect their capitalisation profile, reported earnings, net worth and debt covenants, as well as increased disclosure requirements emanating from new financial instrument standards.

Therefore, the introduction of Ind AS to REITs, InvITs, their underlying SPVs, sponsors or asset management companies could significantly affect financial statements and key metrics based on financial statements, depending on the complexities of each case.

11. Conclusion

The REIT market has evolved substantially in several countries and these investment vehicles have gained immensely in terms of their market capitalisation. A primary condition for the growth of these markets, as demonstrated by the experience of different countries, is their ability to customise regulations governing these investment vehicles in conformity with domestic market conditions.

REITs and InvITs are expected to bring more robustness and increase the depth of the Indian property market through a sound regulatory framework, which ensures transparency and high governance standards, and promotes regular monitoring of their performance.

The REIT and InvIT markets are flourishing in India. However, with various enabling factors such as the growth of the economy and the middle-class population, and a concomitant need for housing as well as infrastructure, we are positive that the market for these investment vehicles will continue to witness considerable growth at a steady pace, as we have seen with recent REITs and InvITs.
